THE only thing a sale offers that we do not, is the chance to select a suit from a collection of leftovers that people would not buy.

Fine opportunity — for the seller, but not for the buyer. The suits we sell at the beginning of the season are as low-priced as the "junk" you see at sales, and as for the quality, well, you wouldn't compare a cubose to a Pullman car, would you?

A minute in our shop today will convince you of the fallacy of waiting to get an inferior suit, when you can choose from a new, up-to-date, stylish stock right now at $10, $15, $20 which is $5 less than you'll pay at "so-called" sales.

If you're willing to be convinced—come up!

TOSS-UP BETWEEN DALY AND KILPATRICK FOR FOOTBALL CAPTAINCY

Latter to Head Track Team If Former Is Chosen to Head Gridiron Squad—Meeting in Yale Gym Tonight to Make Choice—Three Men in Princeton Race—Midshipman Wilson Improving.

New Haven, Dec. 1.—Twenty-three members of the Yale football team that played in the Harvard and Princeton games are to meet tonight in the Yale gymnasium at 6:45 to decide who is to be captain of the 1910 football team. As far as can be ascertained, the vote will be 12 to 10 in favor of John Kilpatrick of New York City, but of the 13 that are counted in for Kilpatrick two are doubtful and may be cast for Frederick Daly of Cambridge, Mass., and thus give him the place of honor.

As the voting is always along lines of fraternal affiliation, it can be safely said that there are nine votes that can be surely counted on for Kilpatrick. Eight can be counted on for Daly, and six are doubtful. Of these six, however, two are counted on by Kilpatrick, while the way the other four are cast will decide who gets the place.

Whoever gets the captaincy, it is sure to be popular, although Kilpatrick can be said to be the favorite because of his spectacular work, but Daly was a very clever and steady halfback, although not of the spectacular type. He was used to forward the ball, but for his line plays more than to carry the ball, but he was also a good ground gainer when needed. He was hurt in the Princeton game, but bravely went into the contest with Harvard.

Kilpatrick is a perfect end in many ways and one of the best and fastest men that ever played the position. He was a wonder in many ways. Both men have had experience before in captaining teams. At Andover in 1908, Daly led the team there that made one of the greatest records the academy ever saw. Kilpatrick was captain of the 1911 team that made almost as good a record as Captain Coy's 1910 team. The latter won every

FOOTBALL FATALITIES

(Harry Franklin Porter)

Shortly ago, at the time of Cadet Byrne's death on the football field, the editor of the Farmer requested the writer to put forth an opinion on the matter. His discussion appeared in the Farmer of Nov. 5. Attention is recalled to the same apropos of what follows. It was then pointed out, that football is a game only for the very hardiest and that natural timidity or lack of preparedness always bear fruit in injury.

Since then the writer had some further thoughts on the subject and besides was in attendance at the banquet of the Sagamore Club in Philadelphia on Friday night last at which men prominent in the football world discussed this very issue. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion among those who had followed the game very closely for years that the chief trouble is in the modern method of attack which permits almost any license in the matter of plays. This license has vested the game with uncertainty, with the result that instead of as formerly plunging into the play with abandon the men on the defense are kept on the keen edge of apprehension and hence are in a less stable position to resist and return onslaught.

The forward pass came in for universal condemnation also, it being held that the player receiving the ball for the attack being in the thick of the hostile territory at the time was liable to onslaught while in the air and in no position to defend himself to advantage. A third point brought out was this, that the modern game was being played altogether too much by the coaches. The factor had two very bad faults, to wit: (1) the players being robbed of a measure of their self-reliance by the directive of authority and the feeling that they were at all times under the rigid censorship of the coaches did not play the game with the same fearless abandon as in the old fashioned days; (2) that the coaches in their desire to merely win stooped to tactics of play that were not altogether sportsmanlike, with the result that elements of craft were introduced into the game which interrupted the free play of manliness. All these things taken together had corrupted the fine spirit of sportsmanship and painstakingness unless in preparation that characterized the game of yore and which gave it its impetus of popularity.

Apropos of this line of discussion, it is pertinent to consider the example of Yale. There a winning team is invariably produced and one very rarely hears of a Yale man being seriously injured. This is because the Yale system has kept the game reasonably pure. Yale spirit will not tolerate any unsportsmanlike tactics, it will not tolerate indifference and hazard in preparation, it will not allow craft and cowardice to inroad themselves. More than that even it provides the proper canalization of authority. The captain of the eleven is always a boss, not a superannumery; he is a real man, generally the fittest man all around in the university, a leader in every sense of the word, not a pet of select circles; finally he is head coach of the team, the representative of the whole football system. Consequently to become captain is an honor most earnestly sought by every aspirant to the eleven from the university. A paratory school who is looking toward old Eli as his Alma Mater to the scrub of the eleven who has reached his junior year without preference. All have the one hope. And it is this hope, this ideal, that has kept Yale's spirit unswayed and her gridiron excellence pre-eminent.

It would be a shame to abolish football on the ground of its calamities—that would insult our intelligence, as well as abolish stairs, because people fall down them and get killed sometimes. Football is our standard American sport and devised it to develop sturdy manhood, to conserve American institutions. But let it be decimated and pruned of its errors by painstaking analysis and put upon a safe and sound basis. Let us pay more attention to playing the game right, as its nature demands, and not meddle with its formations constantly with the view solely of increasing the gate receipts. In this one thing at least there has been retrogression, not progress in our national life. Let's get back into line.

BEAUMONT TO JOIN NORTHAMPTON CLUB

Frank Beaumont, catcher for the local baseball team for a number of years, who at the end of the 1908 season was drafted by the Portland Coast league team, and then by some deal or other still unknown to local fans bought by Holyoke, is said to be dissatisfied with his Papermaker job and desires to go to Northampton.

Owner Edwards of the Larks has often stated that he would like to gather in "Beau," now that the Larks has been purchased by Pittsburg.

It is expected that Owner Edwards and Smiling Bill Luby who was traded to the Larks from Springfield last week for Pitcher Plank, will get together today in the college town. It is anticipated that in a few days Bill Luby will be sending out his signature as a manager.

Edwards is out for a representative team for 1910, he intends to retain Freddie Rasmussen, because he can cover any position. Tony Pastor is slated to vanish, while indicators at present show that "Honest" John Golden will take the same route. Some will have to be secured to take the place of Walsh, the Niagara College recruit who was drafted by Connie Mack. Edwards has secured a catcher named Hughes from Phoenixville, Pa.

THUNDER RUMBLES HERALD COMING OF NATIONAL MAGNATES

Vital Matters Scheduled for Action on December 15.

(Special to the Farmer.)

New York, Dec. 1.—A meeting of the magnates of the National team has always been a fearsome affair, but the one that is scheduled to occur in this city on Dec. 15th, will probably be a free for all fight without even barring the strange hold.

Here are some of the most important things scheduled which are likely to cause fights that will go to the limit:

The election of a president; the effort of Charles W. Murphy and John T. Brush to make the National league a "syndicate" by taking over the Philadelphia club; the effort to depose Billy Murray as manager of the Quakers; the effort of Garry Herrmann of Cincinnati to cut short the schedule of the National league and provide for a series of inter-league games at the conclusion of the regular "league" season.

The fight over the Presidency of course, is expected to be the biggest bone of contention. The belief is growing, however, that Garry Herrmann will put one over on the other magnates and force the election of Heydler, who succeeded Harry Pulliam, though it is thought that Brush are sure to continue their fight against the present president.

It is known that several of the magnates will endeavor to have Murphy and Brush dispose of their holdings in the Philadelphia team, believing that the entire league will suffer from this "syndication" of interest.

Horace Fogel, the new manager of the Philadelphia club, is known to be opposed to the further reign of Murray, but as Murray has a contract the efforts to dislodge him may prove to be a bigger problem than the Murphy-Brush-Fogel commission can surmount.
